Milwaukie, oct16 tf J. H. SILKMAN.

SAY! STRANGER—have you been in LUDINGTON & Co's Store on the corner, since they have received their Fall stock of GOODS? If you have not, I really advise you to go. It is a strange thing indeed to see such a quantity of Goods, and so equal an assortment, in any one store. I have often heard people say that they had a very large stock of Goods, but I never had an idea that their stock was so tremendously large. I have been all around town, in their "Wholesale Stores," "Cheap Cash Stores," "One Price Store," "Great Excitement" Stores, "25 P cent. less than any other House in the Territory" stores, "Fancy Stores" "New Stores," "Western Stores," &c &c. but after visiting all, I put LUDINGTON & Co's store down at extra No. 1. You will find them willing to wholesale or retail Goods cheap for cash, at one fair price, without the least excitement, not 25 P cent cheaper than any other store in town, and they have a fine assortment of Fancy Goods, and will sell as cheap as can be bought at any new store in this Western country. They have, according to the best authority and my own observations, the largest and best selected assortment of Goods in Milwaukie, and their prices appear to give first rate satisfaction among the people. It appears strange, but it is nevertheless true, that they should sell so many Goods to so many people. What you can hardly go into any town in Wisconsin, but what you will see undoubted evidences that they are doing a tremendous large business. As far out as the Mineral region—yes! miles farther you will see dry goods boxes, barrels, kegs, &c &c. with Ludington & Co's name on, which is a strong indication that they were sent there from their store, filled with Goods. Ask the principal residents of Milwaukie, Washington, Dodge, Walworth, Portage, Fond du Lac, Marquette, and numerous other counties, where they buy their dry goods, groceries, hardware, crockery, boots and shoes, leather, stone ware, woodenware, sash, glass, ropes, paints, oils, pork, fish, salt, lumber, lath and shingles, and Minor & Horton's celebrated unrivaled Pongi—they will tell you at the "Old Corner Store" in Milwaukie. Ask them still farther, where they sell their produce, wheat, corn, oats, barley, timothy and flax seed, beeswax, hides, &c. &c. and who gives the highest cash price, and they will tell you LUDINGTON & Co. of Milwaukie. oct19

Saturday Morning, November 8.

Correspondence of the Milwaukie Sentinel.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.

We have been expecting the Great Western, which left Liverpool, or was to leave it on the 11th inst., and is now, therefore, 16 days out.—Yesterday being Sunday, according to usage, this ship should have appeared—but she came not, and is still desired.

The news, however, is looked for with more earnestness by comercial men than politicians, Europe being generally in that happy condition of peace which little interests the political quid nunc. But PRICES—they are the lords of the hour—prices of Cotton, of Flour, of Pork, Beef and Cheese—and for these more than aught else, fleet steamers now come and go, and fleeter locomotives pant along their iron tracks The effect of the intelligence by the last steamer, was upon the whole, adverse to the previous advance in Flour and Grain which the accounts by the Great Britain had occasioned. There has since been some rally, and altho' the extreme rates obtained for flour immediately after the Great Britain arrived have not since been paid, the market is higher than before that arrival.

Price of Genesee is now $4.54, at which all that arrives is taken, and it arrives rapidly. Ohio and Michigan flour command the same rates.—There have been brought down the river during the week ending Saturday, some 78,000 bbls.—and up to this period the whole quantity for the year brought by the canals to tide water, is 1,643,318 bbls. Of wheat during the same time, 801,676 bushels. These quantities, reducing the wheat at five bushels the barrel, to flour, fall short about 96,000 bbls. of the quantity brought during the same time last year.

I adhere to the opinion that no extensive or profitable demand for our bread stuffs is likely to spring up in England—and do not think it likely prices on this side will rise permanently.

I have said that the aspect of Europe is all peace, and literally that is true. But it should be added, in order that the whole truth may be known, that however peacefully disposed Great Britain may be, which from choice is certain necessity towards this country—there is, undoubtedly, recently a general revival of national unkind and jealous feelings with regard to us, which it would not be at all difficult to inflame into actual hostility. It has ever been the foible of John Bull to see the mote in his brother's eye without appearing conscious of the beam that is in his own, and it is in keeping with this species of voluntary self-delusion, that at the very moment when the leading journals of that country are setting forth the expediency, for the good of the natives, of "absorbing" (that is the word employed, not annexing,) the vast and independent region of the Punjaub, contiguous to the enormous British Possessions in India—these same journals are horrified at the annexation with their own consent of the people and nation of Texas, to the U. States. With respect to Indian aggrandisement, the United Service Journal, which is the organ of the military feeling, and perhaps foreshadows the military designs of England, in a recent number holds this language:

"Every thing relating to the State of the Punjaub—the character of its population, its army, its government, its agriculture, its manufactures and commerce—tends to show the necessity, not less for the protection and happiness of the people than for the safety and advantage of the British empire in the East, of placing it under British rule. To this complexion, sooner or later, and the sooner the better, it must come."

These arguments, if such they can be called might be applied with at least equal force by this country to the region of California, of which in all respects the condition will be improved by "being placed under American rule," though we are not yet prepared to say as the British Journal does with regard to the Punjaub, "to this complexion, sooner or later it must come at last."

The Morning Chronicle, the opponent of the Tory Administration, is not less acrimonious than the Times, the supporter of that administration, in its comments upon the "profligacy and cupidity" which it alleges characterize Texan Annexation, and yet that paper thus discourses about the paramount power of England in India, while it does not hold a foot of land that "profligacy and cupidity" did not covet and acquire.

"As the paramount power in India, we might justly take that step at any time. It would require no refined political casuistry to reconcile the act to our conscience. We have two great duties to perform in the East—one towards the native governments, the other towards the native population; and it will surely not be denied that the atter is by far the greater. There is no such thing as an independent state in India. They all exist by sufferance. As heirs to the Emperor of Delhi, we are recognised as lords paramount, and the people, when intolerably oppressed, have a right to look to us for deliverance. The case between us and the native princes is precisely analagous to that of the native princes to their jaghirdars. If any one of these proves himself a tyrant, his liege lord has a right to deprive him of his jaghire, or to compel him to pursue a more equitable course towards his dependents."

While intelligent journalists thus elate themselves and their readers with stories of American ambition and cupidity—while counselling much more extensive and far less justifiable measures of aggrandizement to their own rulers—it can hardly be expected that the cause of the American people can have fair play with the judgment of Europe. On one side the tone towards England is not conciliatory, whenever our claims upon Oregon are under discussion—and thus it may fall out that big talking on each side may produce first unkind feelings, and then absolute hostilities.

Yet, as a matter of choice, the Government of England would, I am persuaded, prefer to remain at peace—for war lighted up in this hemisphere could not be confined to it, but would very surely involve the other in it. Again, England, let whatever may be said or fancied to the contrary, is dependant upon this country for the supply of a staple which employs directly or indirectly some million and a half of operatives—cotton. She has tried in vain for the last 10 or 15 years, to ensure a supply of this necessary from other countries.—Egypt, India and South America combined do not furnish much more than one-eighth of her consumption of that staple, which now average some thirty-three thousand bales a week—and it is therefore easy to see that no administration, unless driven into war by the popular sentiment, or unbearable pretensions unbearably urged on our part, would hazard the supply of an article so essential to the prosperity, nay existence of English manufactures. With all this, it is not less certain, I apprehend, that the certainty of permanently peaceful relations between this country and Great Britain is far less assured now than it was a year ago.

—In State affairs we are on the eve of an election. In this city the Whigs, for the Senate and Assembly, have nominated a remarkably strong ticket, while Tammany Hall has nominated one that cannot command the support of the party which it represents. Yet, as the adversary is always trained and organized for the contest, while the Whigs, especially in so busy and prosperous a season as the present, have other things to attend to than ward meetings and party arrangements—and as, moreover, Native Americanism will do its worst against the Whig ticket, there is not much reason to expect the success of any portion of it. How the result may be in the State, I pretend not to know.

The monster steamer Great Britain, after being raised upon the floating sectional dock for repairs to her Propellor, is again afloat, & will take her departure at 2 o'clock. It is quite remarkable how little interest, comparatively, this marvellous vessel excites—yet certainly, it is a most remarkable structure, of which the like has not been seen before, and is not likely soon to be seen again.

Our beautiful autumn weather continues, much to the enjoyment of our citizens, and the furtherance of business. But the country around is suffering from the dry weather, and wells in various directions, which have never failed before, are LOW giving signs of exhaustion. The surface rains of some ten days ago, which swelled the mill streams, were too violent and too brief to sink into the earth and replenish its secret springs. But we cannot, according to all Indian tradition, have winture till he swamps are flooded. So we citizens are quite content to balance our fine weather against failing water, the more so, as the Croton fails not.

☞ We have received a copy of the report of the Committee appointed at a Public Meeting held at Windsor, in the Township of Whitby, Canada, to take into consideration the subject of constructing a Plank, or Rail Road from Lake Huron to Lake Ontario. The Committee are of opinion that the route from Windsor Harbor, on Lake Ontario, to Sturgeon Bay, an inlet of the Great Georgian Bay, possess very many and decided advantages over any other that can be found between the two great Lakes, Huron and Ontario. The distance from water to water by this route, they say, is only seventy or eighty miles; it is in a direct line from the Straits of Michilimacinac to Oswego, and would make a saving over the present route, via Lake Erie, of about six hundred miles.

This road, if made, will, doubtless, be of some advantage to the travelling public and portions of the Western country. Western Merchants would be able to go to the Eastern cities and return by this route quicker than by any other. The carriage of light goods and other commodities might, to a certain extent, also take this route; but produce and the heavier articles of merchandise must always go by the way of Lake Erie.

The Bostonians, it is said, had their eyes upon this contemplated improvement, when they originated their grand scheme for the construction of the Ogdensburgh and Boston Rail Road; and thought that a Rail Road, connecting Lakes Huron and Ontario, would tend to turn the tide of business towards Boston.

WHAT A COUNTRY!—Five hundred and fifteen millions of bushels of grain are raised in the United States, besides eighty-one millions pounds of rice and five hundred and ten millions bushels of potatoes.

☞ The Nashville Union says:—"Every information we receive, shows that there has been more sickness in Tennessee this summer than has prevailed for ten years. In many counties it has been fatal—but at present health is becoming restored everywhere.

☞ American hemp is now exported to Scotland, where it is used instead of flax in the manufacture of certain kinds of goods, and where a new process has been discovered for softening the article prior to its being spun. Very fine and white goods are made of it, as well as bonnets and paper.

HEATHEN SUBSCRIBERS.—A Sandwich Island paper says that for a whole year it had but one delinquent subscriber. Will some of our subscribers just compare their remissness in this respect, with the promptness of the heathen.

☞ A meeting was recently held in Mason Co., Ky., to denounce C. M. Clay. But before they adjourned they passed a resolution in favor of prospective emancipation, coupled with colonization; and the speakers denounced slavery as a political evil, retarding the progress of Kentucky in population, in physical development, in wealth, and in greatness. This will do well for a beginning.

☞ Accounts from Nova Scotia represent the potatoe crop as subject to an extensive blight.—Government have instituted an enquiry into the matter, as great apprehension is felt in regard to the approaching winter. The N. Y. Sun says, that potatoes housed in good order have rotted in a few days. The influence on the flour market had effected a rise of two dollars on a barrel.

FLORIDA.—The Whigs have achieved a glorious victory in this new State.—Every county has been heard from, and the result is that Mr. CABEL, Whig candidate for Congress, has a majority of more than 200 votes.

☞ Our thanks to the officers of the Missouri, (which arrived yesterday morning) for eastern papers in advance of the mail.

A report was current yesterday that the brig Ramsey Crooks, belonging to the American Fur Company, had been lost with her crew on the Lakes above. We were unable to trace it to any authentic source, or indeed to hear any particulars, and we trust it is unfounded.

The New England Factory-Girls.

One of the New Hampshire girls at work in the mills, who assures us that she has "a few hundreds in the bank," has given us a list of the prices which she was accustomed to receive for her labor in other times, before Factories were thought of. It is curious, and worth contrasting with the present order of things in this respect. In 1806 she received the usual price for female help, employed in the old fashionable mode of spinning with crooked spindles, viz: one yard of cloth for a week's work. As to receiving money, the thing was out of the question.

What articles of dress she needed, she obtained by exchanging her cloth at the stores, paying forty two cents a yard for a gown which may now be had for ninepence. a dollar for cambric which now commands a couple of shillings! She then hired out to do house work and sewing—receiving fifty cents a week in flax, and living on "potatoes, bread, and pea-coffee." Determined to have cash, if it could be had, she engaged at another place, and was to receive one shilling a day in money. But soon, her employer being unable to carry out his engagement, she was compelled to take eggs, thread, oats, rye, cloth, &c. rising before light and working till near midnight.

Unable to stand this, she went to Massachusetts, in 1812, where she received "nine shillings and presents besides, as good as two dollars a week." It was in the midst of war, and times were hard. Her employer had run out of money, and lost every thing but a flock of 1,500 sheep. It occurred to him that he might turn his wool to account; and he accordingly set our operative to "spinning on many spindles," as she calls it. Having acquired some skill in the business, she then "hired out to a gentleman—nowan extensive manufacturer in Vermont—who had introduced some little machinery. She soon learned to work on this, and to "manage the jenny and looms," and shortly after became the overseer of the establishment, receiving her dollar a day. She had charge of his whole business—was the banker, hired the girls and taught them to work. They soon had cloth to sell, and this was the small beginning of one of our large manufacturing villages!

After the war was over, she returned to her parents, and afterwards, through the influence of some of the friends of her last employers—and who are now concerned in the Manchester Corporations—she came to Amoskeag, and has been employed ever since. Instead of sleeping in a garret, and living from hand to mouth, as people were obliged to do in old times, she says she has a fine clean and well ventilated room, the best of food, and high wages regularly in cash.

Now, there is a volume in this simple history of a factory girl. Her story is that of others, who, having known what it was to work from fifteen to sixteen hours a day in years back for a mere pittance—and that payable in any thing and every thing but that which commands all else—can feel the difference in their situation, now that the enterpise of our citizens has given employment to their hands in our manufacturing villages. And yet there are those among us who seek to underrate the position of the operative, to make them discontented with their places, and who actually stigmatize them as SLAVES, for laboring to earn an honest and respectable livelihood. The answer of the operatives themselves almost invariably is, You may talk, but after all, WE GIRLS HAVE A FEW HUNDRED IN THE BANK.

[Manchester (N. H.) American.

SUPREMACY OF LAW.—Next in order to the creation of law must be its due and proper enforcement. But if a law—it may be the best ever made—lie dormant in the statute book, if there be no officer duly authorized to carry out its sanctions, we may as well have no laws, or perhaps it would be better to tolerate the enforcement of laws impartial in their bearings upon the world. It is evident, therefore, that in order to reap the benefit of law, it must be supreme, and its supremacy must be made manifest. In this country, the officers of law are not the suppliant tools of despots, but the efficient agents of the people, affording protection to all, and dispensing the blessings of a free Government: hence results the necessity that the people should at all times assist not only in sustaining the laws, but in their enforcement. Every good citizen, then, has a personal interest at stake in all the affairs of the Government, and, would he see peace and harmony prevail, he must discountenance all violations of law and resistance to lawfully constituted authorities, in accordance with the cardinal principles of a democratic government. If every good citizen would only thus come up to his duty in this particular, we should hear of fewer mobs, riots and lynchings. Why is it that we are pained to find persons conscrious against our public officers, it is difficult to understand, unless it be that some professing to be Americans in feelings are virtually ignorant of our Government. That man who takes a sympathizing stand with a public offender against lawful authority, is a secret foe to the Government which protects his property and person, and ought to be made to share the penalties of the violated law with the convicted offender. On the contray, every good citizen will respect the officer of law, and assist in their proper and lawful execution—a course of conduct which alone will sustain our courts and other public tribunals.

[Southern (Miss.) Reformer.

STANGE STORY.—The following strange story is the subject of very general discussion in Paris. "Madame C——, wife of a mercer who has lately been successful in railway operations, has been been for a length of time enamoured with play, and during the last winter she lost almost constantly. Her husband at last refused to pay a sous of her play debts, so that the lady gambler was often in difficulties.—She returned home a few nights since, after having lost a large sum at lasquinet, and remained up pondering by what means she could manage to discharge her obligations. Whilst thus occupied, she heard a noise in an adjoining closet. She rose at once, and opening the door, found the oldest servant of the family endeavoring to pick the lock of an armoire a glace, in which she kept her jewels.

The man was thunderstruck at the appearance of his mistress, and prayed her most earnestly not to inform against him. An idea suddenly accurred to Madame C——. "Listen to me," said she. "It is you who have already robbed me on several occasions; the act I have caught you in proves it. You will be sent to the galleys, if I inform against you. There is one way of escaping. I want 10,000 frs. You have a quantity of picklocks in your hand. "If you will open your master's safe and take out that sum for me, and no more, I shall say nothing about what I have seen to-night."

The conditions were hard, but the man consented. Scarcely, however, had he introduced one of the instruments into the lock of the safe, when a loud detonation was heard and, the man fell to the ground dreadfully wounded by a ball from a pistol which M. C—— had got inside to prevent robbery. M. C—— arrived in a minute after, and was the first to lift up the man, who still had the picklocks in his hand. The Commissary of Police being sent for received from the thief a statement of what had taken place, removed him to the hospital St. Louis, where he lies in utmost danger. Madame C—— who denies most strongly the truth of the man's declaration, has withdrawn to her family."

THE EXPRESS ROBBERY.—From Rochester we have nothing in relation to the robbery of the Express. The Cleveland Herald of Monday the 28th inst. however, says that on the previous evening, Officer McKinstry, of that city, arrested two men, who are believed to be those seen to leave the depot with the trunk. One is named Charles Mitchell, formerly of Rochester, the other Hiram McGary, alias Joy.—Mitchell had a lot of counterfeit money in his possession, McGary a $10 Bank of Oswego bill.

Officer McKinstry also arrested two on the next day, supposed to be confederates in this robbery. One gives his name as Geo. Smith, the other Wm. Anderson.

Anderson had $90 in his possession—among the bills, one of $10 on the Commercial Bank of Rochester, four $10's on Mechanics' and Farmers' Bank of Albany, four $5's on the Commercial Bank of Rochester, one $5 on the Bank of Troy, one $5 Bank of Syracuse, and one $5 Bank of Onondaga. Smith had $28—among the notes, eight $2 bills on the Unadilla Bank. Anderson and Smith had women in company.—[Nat. Pilot Oct. 31.

THE RESULT OF HE STRIKE IN PITTSBURGH.—The factories are now all at work, with nearly a full complement of hands. A great many new hands are coming in. We were in one of the offices yesterday, when two very fine looking girls applied for work, and stated that they had never been employed in any factory. The proprietor sent them into the mill to work, and remarked to us, "I could fill my mill with new hands in a short time, if I choose to do so, and was willing to take the trouble to teach them." He also told us that a great many new hands were applying and receiving places.

[Pitts. Adv. Oc. 22.

The Future Home of the Mormons—Nooka or Vancouver Island, or the north-west coast of North America, we have it from good authority, is to be the final destination and home of the Mormon people This Island is about 300 miles long, and 75 to 100 in width. It is seperated from the main land by a long, narrow strait, and lies between the 47th or 48th and 51st or 52d degrees of north latitude, extending along the coast in a northwest direction The boundary line between the American and British possessions in the northwest, will probably pass across the Island The English, we believe, have one or two trading posts on the Island, but for the most part, it is inhabited by Indians, of not a warlike disposition. It is a long journey, but can be accomplished. If the Mormons do emigrate to that distant land, they will be out of the reach of harm from white men, and may enjoy their peculiar notions in quiet, until the devil breeds his own discords and confusions among them. We understand from the same authority, that companies are rapidly organizing at Nauvoo, for an early start in the spring. The church authorities and leading men will go out in a very large company, and without doubt the remainder will follow.

[Quincy Whig.

BE AS EASY AS YOU CAN.—Whatever you have to do—happen what may—never fight, foam or chafe; but endeavor to preserve a temperate calmness of mind, which may be largely secured by habit, and which contributes not only to your success, but likewise is essential to your general comfort. There is a happy medium between phlegmatic and lazy indifference and self-destroying irratability—and it is a medium, combining at once energy and calmness, at which every one who has any thing to do in this world should aim. Why, what a fever will a man put himself into to-day, about that which he will laugh at to-morrow; and yet—so little wisdom do we learn by experience—you may, on the following morn hear the same individual once more in one of Sir Anthony Absolute's frenzies. His life is a succession of passionate surges, and of mental earthquakes. He frets himself as it were, into fiddle strings, but makes no music. He dies, indeed, before he reaches smooth waters and unclouded skies—a victim to his temper. He was a good fellow—yes a philosopher—who always took a pinch of snuff between flashing his bird and firing at it. He was never flurried; though if we were a 'bird' we would rather be shot at by any other gunner than by him. There's nothing like coolness—it never breaks things in its impatience. Coolness—did you ever see it tumble up stairs, or do itself a mischief? Study to be cool—ay, even if the house be on fire, or the horse run away. Dangers retreat when coolly they are confronted.

The Excitement at Emery's Confectionery Statement of Facts.

THE Proprietor, whose shop is on Wisconsin street, a few doors above the Book store of Hale & Hopkins, deems it proper, and begs leave respectfully to state, that in regard to the movement about his shop on account of the arrival of so large a stock of Goods in his line, the excitement was not as great as might have been expected, nor did his shop or goods receive any material damage. That such an unprecedented arrival of Toys, Fancy Articles and Sugar Fixings, should create quite a stir among the juveniles, as well as those of more mature age, is not surprising. He is however happy to state that the crowd, (who had assembled only to gaze on the endless variety comprising his stock,) were easily dispersed, all perfectly satisfied that the greatest lot of pretty Toys, Fancy Boxes, Dolls and Confectionery that they ever did see, is to be found at Emery's, and quietly though anxiously wait the annual visit of Old Santaclaus, richly laden with the good things to be found at this establishment.

The proprietor, thankful for past favors, and expecting in a few days to move to his new shop, nearly opposite his present stand, will then be able to spread out his stock of valuables, and respectfully solicits a continuance of the patronage of the public. County merchants and dealers supplied as usual with Candies; parties with Ice Creams, Cakes and Jellies. The public generally are invited to call at this establishment, where all the varieties of an eastern city Confectionery may be had.—Molasses Candy as usual at the reduced rates.

SANDS' SARSAPARILLA.—Fever one of the most frequent and dangerous diseases to which the human body is liable. Its first impression is upon the nervous system; then the vessels of the skin become deranged, producing dryness and burning heat. After this the general system is involved, and the pit cut sinks beneath the attack, unless relieved by appropriate remedies. Noxious effluvia and various miasmas are the cause of fever, being inhaled throughout the atmosphere, and then breathed into the lungs, when the poison combines with the impure fluids of the body and is carried by the circulating organs to the remote ramifications of the system. If then, the animal frame is kept in a perfect sound and healthy state, and every organ performing its functions properly, there can be no an on of the predisposing cause, which is the noxious effluvia or marsh miasm, with the exciting, which is an impure state of the blood, and depraved condition of the general constitution, and consequently no disease

For farther particulars and conclusive evidence of its superior value and efficacy; see pamphlets, which may be obtained of agents gratis.

Prepared and sold, wholesale and retail, by A. B. SANDS & Co. Druggists and Chemists, 273 Broadway, New York. Price one dollar per bottle; six bottles five dollars. For sale by [oct8] L. J. HIGBY.

CLEMEN'S INDIAN TONIC.—An infallible cure for chills or ague and fever. The unexampled success of this truly unrivaled Tonic in curing in a few hours, when ALL other remedies have failed, and that, too, in cases of from six to ten months standing, warrants the assertion that if taken according to the directions, an entire cure will be effected; and as a test of its efficacy. I warrant a cure in six days, or give another bottle without any charge; but as yet not a single case has come back not cured. L. J. HIGBY.

SALT RHEUM is certainly cured as usual by the use of North's Ointment and syrup, try it and see whether the papers tell the truth or not.
